

Bedtime Story For the Little Ones

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE CORN.

By HOWARD, B. GARDNER.

"Will, where are you going today, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Nurse Jane Puzzy. "The muskrat lady housekeeper, as she saw the bunny gentleman starting out from the hollow stump house on his new farm."

"Oh, I am going to look at my corn field today," answered Mr. Longears. "The ears are growing nice and large, but I want to whisper in them that they must grow even larger before they are ready to pick."

"Whisper in whose ears?" asked Nurse Jane. "The ears of corn, of course," answered Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. "The ears of corn can't hear you."

"Of course they can't," said the bunny gentleman. "I suppose you will be telling the next that the tongue of my shoe can't speak."

"Certainly not," said Miss Puzzy. "The tongue of my shoe can't speak." "All right," laughed Uncle Wiggily. "Anyhow, I am going off to my corn field to see how it is growing. And I hope the bad fox doesn't try to get me or the skilley-scallery alligator, for I couldn't fool him and give him some round, brown stones, and tell him they were ears of corn, as I did with the potatoes."

"No, indeed," said Nurse Jane. "So the bunny gentleman went off to his corn field and he walked up and down the rows, where the green stalks were growing, and he really did pre-lend to talk in the corn's ears, though whether they heard him or not I can't say. At any rate the wind whispered through the leaves, and the corn seemed to listen, for each stalk bent its head when the wind told it to.

"Well, I guess I am to have no adventure today," thought Uncle Wiggily to himself, as he came to the end of the corn field. "I may as well go back and see how my beans are coming on."

He started back and just as he did so, he heard a sad little voice saying: "Oh, dear! I can't go and I want to—so much! Oh, dear! It's too bad!"

"Ha! What's that? Trouble, it sounds like to me," said Uncle Wiggily. "Who are you and what is too bad?" he wanted to know.

"I am Squeaky-Beky, the little cousin mouse," was the answer, and the bad part of it is that I have no dress to wear to Alice Whittlebobbie's party."

"What! Is Alice Whittlebobbie the duck girl, going to have a party?" asked Uncle Wiggily, surprised like.

"She is," answered the little cousin mouse. "She invited me and also Jillie, but neither of us wants to go because we haven't new dresses."

"You see, Mr. Longears, the papa mouse, hasn't much money since the cheese factory closed. He used to know how to make the cheese, but he has no work and so he can't give Jillie or me the money for new party dresses, and it's too bad!"

"I'll surely," Uncle Wiggily said. "I know what it is to want to go to a party and not be able. Let me see, now. I wonder if I could not help you."

"Have you a new silk dress—two of them?" said Uncle Wiggily, sort of talking to himself as he looked down the long rows of corn. "Well, no, I don't believe I have any silk dresses, little cousin mouse."

"Oh, dear," I might have known," said Squeaky-Beky. "Jillie and I must give up thinking about the duck girl's party."

"From the corn," how can you?" asked the little cousin mouse. "There is a great deal of silk in the brown and white silk that grows on the end of the ears of corn. So how nice and soft and silky this is. Squeaky-Beky, went on the bunny. "There is enough here for forty-seven dresses. Take all you want, and some for Jillie Longears, too!"

"Oh, thank you!" cried the little cousin mouse. "This is so good of you!"

Then she pulled off some silk from the corn, and taking enough for Jillie, and Mrs. Spin-Spider, spun the silk threads into cloth, with a pretty brown and white check pattern, and Mrs. Longears made the dresses for the two little mice girls.

So they went to the duck girl's party after all, and every one said their silk was good for something. And if the postage stamp doesn't sit down so hard on the letter that it can't get to school again, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily, and the beans.—Copyright, 1916, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Today And A Generation Hence

The flight of time makes us think of the future. The baby of today reflects what greatness may be acquired when he grows up. And any child who is born with a healthy body and a clear mind is the first and greatest of obligations.

There is a splendid remedy known as "Mother's Friend" that has been an safeguard, a helpful ally, a kind of nurse, to a host of women. Applied externally to the muscles they seem to plant, stretch without undue pain, there is an absence of distress, the nerves are soothed by taking away the burden of leaving all to just natural conditions.

There is a "Mother's Friend" the direct and immediate help that all expectant mothers require. Used by their own hand, guided by their own minds, they learn at once the blessed relief from morning sickness resulting from undue stretching. They experience daily calm and nightly rest. It is indeed "Mother's Friend." Get a bottle today of any drugstore. ## BLISTERS ON FACE ITCH AND BURN

Forehead and Nose Shield of Scales. Child Would Cry and Lie Awake At Night. Awfully Cross.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My little girl had eczema on her face so badly that her forehead and all across her nose was a shield of scales and her eyes were closed. It came in clear blisters which would spread and itch and burn causing her to scream. She would cry and lie awake and keep me awake at night and she was awfully cross."

"When I went for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I knew it helped her, so I got one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Ointment and inside of a month she was healed sound and well." (Signed) Mrs. M. Nicholson, Napa, Tenn., July 27, 1915.

Sample Each Free by Mail With 25¢ Skin Book on request. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston." Sold throughout the world.

FOUND HEALTH IN CARDUI

Oklahoma Lady Says She Visited Four States Seeking Health, But Did Not Find It Until She Took Cardui.

Henrietta, Okla.—Mrs. Anna Hileman, of this place, says that she suffered for 8 years with headache, backache and other complaints caused from womanly troubles, and that she had been to Colorado, Dakota, Missouri, and Kansas seeking health and never found it until she took Cardui. She says she was given up and was confined to her bed for three months.

She further says: "We then moved here and after moving here, the druggist here in Henrietta, Okla., told my husband about Cardui and gave him a Birthday Almanac, and I read the testimonials and began taking it, and could see after I had taken the second bottle it was doing me good, and so I kept it up. I would not do without it in the house. When I feel tired and nervous after doing a hard day's work it seems to rest me and make me feel fresh."

Today I am a well woman and I know that Cardui...has cured me. I can do all my own work and washing and house cleaning now without ever giving out. I have several friends right here in town who have been unable to do their work for years but are now up since taking a couple of bottles of Cardui. I weigh 116 pounds, and am always well. When I commenced taking it one year ago, I only weighed 99 pounds."

All druggists sell Cardui, the woman's tonic. Try it. If you need a remedy of this kind, get a bottle today.—Ad.

Refreshing Summer Desserts

By CONSTANCE CLARKE.

A PLEASANT variety in refreshing iced desserts prepared as follows are delicious with their appetizing delicacy:

Iced Cocoa—Prepared in the usual way, then placed on ice for an hour or so. Served with whipped cream, favoring with vanilla.

Strawberry Parfait—Take a cupful of crushed strawberries with a cupful of sugar sprinkled over them. Mix with a cup of cream beaten stiff. Put into a covered mould. Place in a freezer for two hours.

Serve in parfait glasses with whipped cream.

Iced Coffee Cream—Mix four ounces of freshly roasted coffee berries, slightly crushed, in a pint of cream, and let this stand on the stove, but do not allow to boil. Strain it through a fine sieve and sweeten with one-half cup of sugar. Then freeze; when it is half frozen, add one-half cup of stiffly whipped cream and finish freezing. Serve in a glass with whipped cream and sprinkle a little cinnamon over the top.

To-morrow—A New Spring Salad.

NEWS NOTES FROM McVIELAND

BY DAISY DEAN

ANOTHER screen actress is rising rapidly to the pinnacle of popularity. Her name is Margery Wilson, and she plays in Triangle films. She is a brunette and strikingly pretty, with that indefinable quality that directors call personality.

She has lately been seen in "The Primal Love," playing opposite William S. Hart; and now she is to appear in support of Douglas Fairbanks in his seventh Triangle play, "The Assassin." Why is it, by the way, that Fairbanks seems to be taking all of Hart's leading ladies away? He just took Bessie Love.

Miss Wilson has already made her name on the speaking stage. It was while resting in California from arduous labors there, that she became interested in film work, and applied to D. W. Griffith for a position. Her first picture convinced him that she was the material he was seeking, and at once made her a member of his permanent stock company.

SOMETHING NEW IN MOVIE DRAMA

Undoubtedly the future of movie drama is in doing what cannot be done on the stage, not in merely producing staged plays.

Something new in this direction is to be offered in a Fox picture starring June Caprice.

She drinks a glass of wine and it goes to her head. When that happens on the stage the confused one says she sees double, and we take her word for it.

In this film play the audience is made to see just what the dizzy young person in the play sees. This is accomplished by photographing parts of the picture twice and throwing both together on the screen.

In comes a nearsighted old lady whose old fashioned spectacles are on her forehead.

She looks at the hero, and sees him dimly. The audience is made to see him as through her nearsighted eyes. This is by photographing the figure out of focus. Then she adjusts her glasses, and the audience, with the old lady in the play, sees the hero clearly.

In speaking of the days when she used to play Indian girl parts almost exclusively, Anna Little says she is surprised that the stuff went over so well, as she knew very little about putting on Indian colors, and used Margery Wilson.

She is a native of Nashville, Tenn., and made her stage debut in Chattanooga at the age of 14. She was a star of the legitimate stage before her recent entrance into pictures.

Nearly everything but the kitchen stove in her makeup.

"That dreadful Harry S. Hilliard said, 'It's remarkable that a woman who can learn the most intricate dance steps gets off a street car like a baby.'"

Lillian Walker was a dancer on the end of the first row in the chorus of the Follies.

HOROSCOPE.

Wednesday, May 31, 1916.

THIS is rather an uncertain day. Mars and Jupiter are adverse and Venus changes from evil to kind by way.

The New Moon of this date occurs when Sagittarius is rising and the luminaries are setting. Venus in conjunction with Saturn is in sinister position, while both Mars and Uranus are in threatening place.

The configuration indicates great disasters to shipping and increased dangers navigation. Strikes and insubordination will be encouraged by the stars, the seers predict.

The government is especially bad for women and young children, and the mortality may be great. The health should be safeguarded.

Work for sanitary precautions should be thorough in all the large cities. It is predicted, an epidemic are foreshadowed.

As Saturn and Venus culminate in the eastern states, unsettled labor conditions, scandals, and unexpected incidents of an unpleasant nature are foreshadowed.

The president should safeguard his health. He may have a summer of extraordinary stress from causes that could not be foreseen.

On this day it is well to postpone initiative of all sorts. Merchants should be especially careful in regard to banking business.

Railways have rather a sinister rule. Accidents are foretold.

California comes under a government of the planets read as presaging excitement concerning naval affairs and alarm caused by Oriental conditions or activities.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid litigation as they will lose money.

Children born on this day may be quick-tempered, but they are likely to be persevering and successful.—Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Shearing One's Eyebrows

CLIPPING THE EYEBROWS is only a temporary treatment. Hairs that grow out of place, making the eyebrow misshapen or thick, can only be permanently removed by using again, and, in time, the hairs will grow thicker—a reason why many women with thin eyebrows clip them.

Keep the curve of the blade outward, or else you will cut yourself. Cut each hair separately, and cut it right at the skin, so it will be invisible. If your eyebrows are very dark, you can dip the end of a toothpick into a bottle of fresh peroxide, and touch the place just cut. This will make the hair come in a lighter shade, and in time make it less conspicuous.

Cut off all the hairs that spoil the perfect arch of the brow. And then shut one eye at a time, and clip off the fine ends of the lashes—simply to make these grow thicker. Of course your lashes may be so long and thick that they do not need this treatment—if so, you are unusually fortunate.

You will be pleased at the results of your shearing, however, if you have been bothered at all by thick eyebrows. Your eyes apparently will be larger and brighter, set off by more perfectly arched brows.

Questions and Answers

If the lady signing herself "A Heavy Heart" will send me her address with a stamped envelope, I will send her the directions for reducing the hair. I could not take the space here to print the directions. There is surely no reason for you to be ashamed to have your family or anyone else know about it, even if they did want an explanation about your letter. I am sorry that I cannot help you.

To Miss J. K.—I distinctly remember mailing you the information about cleaning white spots. If you did not get it, it went astray. Through the columns, some one asked for same information, you likely took that as your reply. This, of course, does not come under the department beauty culture, but I can try to help you on any question. French chalk rubbed into them, and brushed out, will keep them clean for a time, but a lather of raw starch and gasoline—rinser in gasoline (if clear). They may then take their final leave of life by rubbing into them any of the white first aid salve that comes in the white case, or kid shoe. For the whiteheads and massage, write to me, if you have not received the information already through the mail.

14 YEARS AGO TODAY

From The Herald of This Date, 1902.

BANKS, government offices and the general offices of all railways running into El Paso were closed today and the flags on the federal building and elsewhere were half mast.

The members of the G. A. R. and United Confederate Veterans boarded a trolley car early this morning for Evergreen and Concordia cemeteries, where the graves of their departed comrades were profusely decorated with flowers. Services were also held at the two cemeteries.

Judge Jay Good left for Arizona on legal business.

George Ogden left for Charlie Newman's ranch, where he will spend a few days and assist in the roundup.

A. J. Ross, superintendent of bridges and buildings of the G. I. railway for this division, arrived in the city from the east.

Mrs. R. M. Temple returned from Alamosa, where she has been visiting her mother and attending the wedding of her brother.

John L. Taylor, who for the past five years has been a member of the El Paso police force, has resigned to take a position under J. H. Boone at Washington park.
